

Socialisation checklist

In many owners' eyes socialisation means making 'doggy friends' by going to the park or beach and throwing their pup in at the deep end. They expect their puppy to mix happily with other dogs because they are dogs too. Would they push their toddlers into the park to play with other 'humans' in the same way without checking out their suitability? I don't think so. Of course puppies do need to have contact with other dogs but this interaction needs to be carefully managed to ensure confidence and good manners.

Equally, or even more important in some cases, is socialisation with a variety of people and situations. With many dogs this can be achieved at a fairly young age, but with the herding / guarding breeds this has to be continued regularly over a much longer period as the 'fear' stages seem to be more intense. Public attitudes to breeds can also be significant – most people will stop to talk to a cuddly Labrador pup of 5 months but will back off if a GSD pup of the same age has a woofing session at them. This can have a significant effect on a pup who finds out that it can make 'scary' people go away when it barks. Similarly a puppy that is used to attracting attention when small and cute may become frustrated when people start to walk on by as it gets older and less appealing. This can lead to lunging and barking, which then attracts displeasure from the owner and results in a dog that associates people with being told off.

The goal of socialisation is that the puppy has positive experiences, not neutral or bad ones.

Here's a checklist that can help you make sure your pup sees and meets everything he needs so he can become a happy, well-adjusted family pet. Tick off each item as you meet them and score your dog's progress using the table below:

PROGRESS	SCORE	RESPONSE TO THE PERSON, OBJECT, ENVIRONMENT OR HANDLING
Needs Work	1	Overarousal: Growl, nip, bark, struggle (for handling), or lunge
	2	Avoid: Struggle, hide, try to get away, won't approach, or hesitant to approach
	3	Freeze: Holds still (but won't eat), non-exploratory, moving slowly or acting sleepy when they shouldn't be tired
Going well	4	Calm, relaxed, explores the object or environment, playful, with help of treat/food
	5	Calm, relaxed, explores the object or environment, playful, without treats/food
